

Building labour market resilience for Europe's low skilled and unqualified through targeted vocational guidance practice

Description

Erasmus Employment Plus addresses the social exclusion of Europe's adult citizens in the labour market who are unqualified, or who have lower qualification levels, and those who are un— or low-skilled. Low skills have complex social causes: long term unemployment, ageing, skills mismatch, socioeconomic background, migrant status, race and gender are all factors which impact on skills level.

The skills, knowledge, and competencies of guidance practitioners will be developed in order that they can support their clients to build resilience, and progress in rapidly changing local, regional, national, and global labour markets.

Aims

- 1. Improve the quality, relevance, and efficiency of vocational education and training in partner countries
- 2. Create new and innovative action learning materials for guidance practitioners that are designed to support the specific needs of those with limited skills and qualifications
- 3. Improve information and understanding of trends in demand for skills and jobs, to enable people to make better career choices, find quality jobs, and improve their life chances.
- 4. Develop a new, transnational guidance practitioner network that will build a platform for new connections and collaborations

Outputs
